fitt, then for Crookback who would haue all./

13 Looke to thy Exchequo[u]r where Subiects be all cheaked by Osborne and Fanshaw, thy Tellers & Audito[u]rs. Also whose Dames are not contented w[i]th M[ast]res but Ladilike do goe, wee dare not speake their treaso[u]r is so greate, but weale & lament, and vnder the burthen of Milles & Roper Offices do daylie groane./

14. Looke vnto thy houses Parkes & forrests. howe downe and bare they bee. And then what Courtier keeps them maye you easily see: /

15. Forgett not thy Marchants howe w[i]th Customes they be opprest. I meane not [th]e Vsurer what callinge so euer he be, Let him within thy Realme haue little rest. /

16 Good K[ing] let<sup>make</sup> not lo[rd] of good Linc[oln] Duke of Shorditche for is a &c:

17 Good K[ing] make not Sr W.R. Erle of Pancridge for he is a &c.

Good Kinge loue vs & we will loue thee, and will spend o[u]r harts bloods for thee. /
